In 2004 Maryland's Port of Baltimore completed the acquisition of 12 rubber-tired gantry cranes (RTGs), which almost doubled the capacity of Seagirt Marine Terminal by allowing more efficient storage and handling of containers.

Mediterranean Shipping Company has become the largest container carrier in the Port and the first to handle more than one million tons of containerized cargo in a single year.

In addition, contract extensions with Evergreen America Corporation at Seagirt Marine Terminal and APM Terminals at Dundalk Marine Terminal position Baltimore for continued long-term success in the growing containerized cargo sector.
